

TERCster - the New Word for Entrepreneur

Entrepreneurship is a useless and outdated business term. The word entrepreneur is too loose to measure success in business. An empirical approach and methodology is needed, which provides business metrics around Time, Experience, Risk and Capital. A TERCster is a person who optimizes his or her Time, Experience, Risk and Capital in a business to make it successful. This book sets out the rock solid common sense principles of being a TERCster. The author includes entertaining cameos from his own successful business adventures, which help to illustrate the principles. Also included is analysis of 7 famous TERCsters: Steve Jobs, Bill Gates, Elon Musk, Jack Ma, Larry Page, Mark Zuckerberg, Steve Case
