

Proceedings of the 1st Experimental Chaos Conference, Arlington, Virginia, October 1-3, 1991

These proceedings are dedicated to understanding the experimental aspects of chaotic behaviour in several fields and to addressing the emerging areas of data analysis and applications of nonlinear phenomena. Areas covered are data analysis and signal processing techniques, optics, applications of chaotic behaviour, magnetism, nonlinear electronic circuits, spatiotemporal chaos, semiconductors, and physiology. Every paper shows real data and what can be done with it. Emphasis is on the manifestation of chaos in real systems, measuring it, analyzing it, and using it in new and unique applications.
