

Learn Chinese In Music Videos

In this book, I will introduce some great music videos from China that you can find on YouTube, translate and analyze lyrics line-by-line, include extended stories and talk about Chinese language. At the very end, I hope I can get your honest review for the book. Thank you very much. Let me get you a piece of it first. 一, which means night, is pronounced as ye in yes. 一 can be broken into three parts. On top, a dot and a line mean that it is a house with a chimney and roof. At the bottom, 一 on the bottom left means one person. The other part on the bottom right means flesh. At night, a man sleeps. 哭, which means to cry, is pronounced as ku like cu in Cush. 哭 can be broken into two parts as well. On top, there are two 丨, which resemble ones eyes. At the bottom, 犬 means dog. A man cries for his dog. This is how we remember this word. I love music and live music. I just want to honestly express what I feel about music and share it to you all. In every episode, I want you to attentively listen to a piece of Chinese music on YouTube. I want you to lively get involved in the music video. I want you to have an unique experience. Simply learn how to speak a bit of Chinese. Welcome to Volume 2, you are welcome to check out Volume 1 down below. Thank you for your time. Make sure that you put your comment, your genuine feeling about the book, down below.
