

Give Thanks to the Lord: Celebrating Psalm 92

Written by Karma Wilson, an established award-winning author. In this heartwarming story that references Psalm 92, award-winning childrens author Karma Wilson tells a story about the Thanksgiving holiday that hits just the right tone. Told from the point of view of one young member of an extended family, Give Thanks to the Lord celebrates all the joys of the autumn holiday, from the arrival of distant relatives to a cozy house filled with noisy good cheer to apple cider and the delicious smells of roasting turkey and baking pies. And just when mouths are watering, the family sits down, holds hands, and says a prayer of thanks to God for food and fun and family, all the wonderful things we see. Young readers will delight in each tender rhyme as they learn to appreciate their own many blessings in this full-color picture book for kids. KARMA WILSON Her first poem was published at the tender age of six. The poem was ironically titled, I Dont Wanna Write a Poem! Growing up, she had no desire to write. But Providence had different plans, and now Karma writes poems for a living when shes not busy being a wife and raising three kids. In her spare hours Karma spends time in the wilderness, lifts weights, cooks, and kickboxes. And she loves writing. Karma lives in Fione, MT. AMY JUNE BATES has illustrated dozens of childrens books. She lives in Ann Arbor, MI, with her husband and their son, Evan.
