Arriving in the USA at age nineteen with $200. in her pocket, Angela OMara built a highly successful niche PR agency and, after spending 20 years rising to the top of the public relations world, she found herself at the helm of a sinking ship during the worst global economic recession in history. Should she stay with the company she had built from the ground up and weather the storm, or cut her losses and leave it all behind? Poignant, wise and witty, Lipstick. Laptops. Life. tells the tale of Angelas determination to bring her company and herself back to the top. On her journey, she calls on parts of herself that were lost along the way.
