

The Job Pirate: An Entertaining Tale of My Job-hopping Journey in America

From the porn magazine to the moving truck to the dark sewers of California, Brandon Christophers journey in the American job market is not only absurd, but also full of wit and profound observations. He steps out from behind the drivers wheel, the cash register, and the office desk to record the lighter and darker sides of humanity in the workplace. Christophers tale makes even the most mundane job seem fascinating and the most exciting career appear hum-drum and hollow. The Job Pirate strips off the facade of the average employee to see what is hidden underneath: That new employee that you see hanging his vintage blazer onto the backrest of his swivel chair is me. My cubicle is right next to yours. I dont say much, I dine alone, I drink a lot of coffee, and I know my legal right to two cigarettes in an 8-hour workday. And yes, you were right, Im not really the Marketing Strategist that I told the boss I was. But Im sitting here in this cubicle, and the resume that got me this job is in my attache case right beside me. It clearly states that I have more than enough experience to run this companys entire advertising department and Ill be here between three weeks and a year, so you better get used to the idea. Often hilarious and sometimes profound, Christophers stories take us through the offices, department stores and kiosks of the West Coast. We ride along with him as he chauffeurs the famous, the dead and sometimes just their furniture. Christopher gives us an irreverent inside glimpse into the work life of the people we see everyday. Even though at times he exhibits moral ambiguity, we find ourselves rooting for him against all the odds because we can see our own struggles in his attempts to acclimate. We can all relate to this story of selling our soul to the company store and then buying it back for pennies on the dollar, just to have that one more day of freedom.
