

Henry J. Raymond: Founded the New York Times

Biographical profile of Henry J. Raymond, newspaper pioneer. The New York Times was well established long before Adolph Ochs acquired it in 1896 and before it was published by his daughter Iphigene and her husband Arthur Sulzburger. The Times founder, Henry Raymond, had formed it into one of the leading papers in Gotham, competing with James Gordon Bennetts Herald, Horace Greeleys Tribune, Joseph Pulitzers World, and Charles Danas Sun. Raymond was its editorial light, the man most responsible for nurturing the paper from birth to the higher echelons of American journalism. Award-winning author and syndicated columnist Daniel Alef, who has written more than 300 biographical profiles of Americas greatest tycoons, brings out the story of Raymonds remarkable life and the turbulence he encountered while climbing the road to the pinnacle of success.
