

They Said I Couldn't Do It, But I Did

Evelyn B. Echols shares lessons from a lifetime of adventures. She was one of America's first and most successful entrepreneurs, founding a commercial travel agency with a great roster of clients who also became lifelong friends -- Joan Crawford, Helen Hayes, Celeste Holm, Jeannette and Winthrop Rockefeller, Edie Davis (Nancy Reagan's mother), Walter Cronkite and many more. At 94 she still lectures, writes, serves on boards and collects awards. Her book is a wonderful tale of a wonderful life, filled with humor and to-the-point advice.
