

Who, What, Where (Volume 1)

One of a series of children's books developed by a special education teacher, Who, What, Where (Volume 1) is an effective tool for helping young children with language processing delays, autism, and other developmental disabilities. This volume's engaging combination of easy-to-understand who/what/where questions and child-friendly illustrations are specially chosen to help young children understand simple questions associated with daily routines and activities. The ability to answer these types of questions is an important skill for developing language comprehension. This volume is recommended for children with a developmental age between 24 and 36 months.
